Ja, weil während der Schulferien Hochbetrieb herrscht. Deshalb raten die Veranstalter, bereits im Vorfeld zu buchen, um sich einen Platz zu sichern.

£11.95

Nein, die Tour beginnt erst am späteren Vormittag.

Wir sollten uns pünktlich zu Beginn der Tour um 10.30 Uhr einfinden.

Es ist leider nicht erlaubt, den Rollator in den Duck mit hinein zu nehmen, aber er wird in der Zwischenzeit im Büro verwahrt. Du musst nur sechs Stufen bewältigen, um in den Duck einzusteigen.

Leider nicht, da die Tickets nicht rückerstattungsfähig und nicht übertragbar sind.

Part 3: A story – I went through the gate

After five long days of travel preparations finally the time had come to start our camping trip in the Rocky Mountains. My friend Ben and I had chosen a part of a forest area that was a little remote from the other campgrounds. When I went through the gate of the camping site I saw the ruins of an old castle. Not far from here the forest began. When we reached our camping site it was almost dark and we decided to put up our tent and go to bed. However, at about midnight we woke with a start! There was a roaring and crashing sound echoing through the night. Ben and I were shaking with fear but finally dared to have a careful look out of our tents. And there, right in front of us, two moose were fighting and clashing their horns! What natural spectacle! Ben was even able to take a photo before the impressive animals spotted us and ran away. That adventurous first night gave us an experience we'll never forget!

Part 1: An E-Mail – Down-to-earth Duchess

Dear Kate,

My name is ... and I'm a 16-year-old pupil from Germany. I'm writing an article for our school magazine about famous peoples' shopping habits, so I'd like to ask you a few questions:

Do you often go shopping in a mall or do you prefer buying your clothes online? How do you avoid being disturbed by pushy customers or paparazzi? If you need a dress for an official event, do you have it made by a tailor? What style of clothing do you like best for your private life? And finally – could you tell me your opinion about school uniforms?

Thanks a million for taking the time to answer some of my questions!

Best wishes and greetings to the whole royal family!

Yours sincerely,

Part 2: An Article – Are our lives too stressful?

Paging through articles with current studies about our society, it's striking that the so-called "burnout syndrome" is widely spread today. It all seems to be referring to the high level of stress in our daily lives.

Speaking for myself, I can state that there are certain stress factors I have to deal with. As a pupil you are always confronted with the pressure of getting good marks at school and therefore improving your chances of getting a good job and a satisfying life later on. Nevertheless I don't want to give up my hobbies and social contacts. This is where smartphones and social networks like Facebook or Twitter can be a great advantage and today it's normal to integrate social networks and smartphones into our working life. However, being constantly available increases our stress level and can have a negative influence on our physical and mental health.

As we can see, it's necessary to make use of some strategies and habits that prevent the level of stress from getting too high. For example, it's important to have good time management and to plan a balance between work and free time. In addition to this, we should make the best possible use of breaks and time-outs.
