Writing Part 2: Becoming a Vegetarian

Hi Meatie15,

Giving up meat or not? This is a question which has been debated for many years, and a subject on which there are many different opinions. It is a lifestyle choice that you need to consider carefully. People decide to become a vegetarian for very different reasons. A love of animals and being aware of the bad living conditions in which some animals are bred is certainly one aspect. On the other hand, people are thinking more about their health – the BSE crisis or the rotten meat scandal stop them from eating beef or pork. In my opinion, vegetarians are admirable for their discipline and consistency in combining their beliefs and behaviour.

Me and my family don't eat much meat – if we do, we mostly choose turkey. Other things we like are vegetables, potatoes, noodles and freshly baked bread.

Why don't you try to talk to your dad and explain your wishes and needs concerning your nutrition? Maybe you'll be able to find a compromise.

Wishing you all the best,

Writing Part 3: Two Tickets

Hey Alice,

I've just got a super birthday present – two tickets for an event of my choice. And that's something that we could do together when we meet in Hamburg. Here are the two things I find most interesting:

At the Port of Hamburg you can do a trip on a ship which sails past the St. Pauli fish market and through the docks. The port has a wide variety of different things to see. On the route there is the giant tent where the musical "The Lion King" is performed. What do you think about watching a performance there?

Another suggestion is that we could go for a special meal. There's a restaurant which serves warm food in an ice palace. There are also illuminated sculptures made of ice that shine in different colours. As the temperature is very low, you can't stay longer than one hour but I think that's enough to enjoy a delicious meal there.

Which of the two activities would you like to do? Tell me what you think. I'm excited about meeting up and I'm looking forward to seeing you!

☺ Love from,
